

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry pseudodocumentary and label it as news just before the election is a farce made possible by media consolidation and by a lack of oversight.

What happened to Equal Time, or whatever the rule was? Please tell me it still exists, and that Sinclair will be required to show one of the films which examines Kerry's military service in a more positive or neutral way before the voters go to the polls. There are at least a couple of them out there. I think one is called "Going Upriver" and another is "Brothers in Arms".

Thank you.